

Turning compliance into peace of mind. Because being compliant doesn't always mean being safe.

Ligtas helps organisations protect people, strengthen performance, and build safer, smarter workplaces through practical support that works in the real world.

Practical safety expertise built around people

Good health and safety should make work better for everyone. It should protect people, give leaders peace of mind, and help organisations grow with confidence.

For more than thirty years, Ligtas has supported organisations across the UK to build safer, smarter workplaces. Our consultants and trainers combine real-world experience with clear communication so you can manage risk, protect your people, and stay confident that the right controls are in place.

We go beyond compliance because being compliant isn't always the same as being safe.

Where risk often hides

- Training that is generic and not linked to real tasks
- Actions raised in audits that are not closed out
- Records that are incomplete, inconsistent, or hard to evidence
- No named competent person support, or not enough of it
- Procedures written from templates that people do not follow
- Little consultation with workers, so issues go unreported

What makes Ligtas different

- Human-first, partnership-led support
- Real-world expertise across consultancy and training
- Clear, practical advice that teams can actually use
- Technology and reporting that make compliance easier to manage
- A joined-up approach that helps safety become lived, not just logged

When consultancy and training work as one

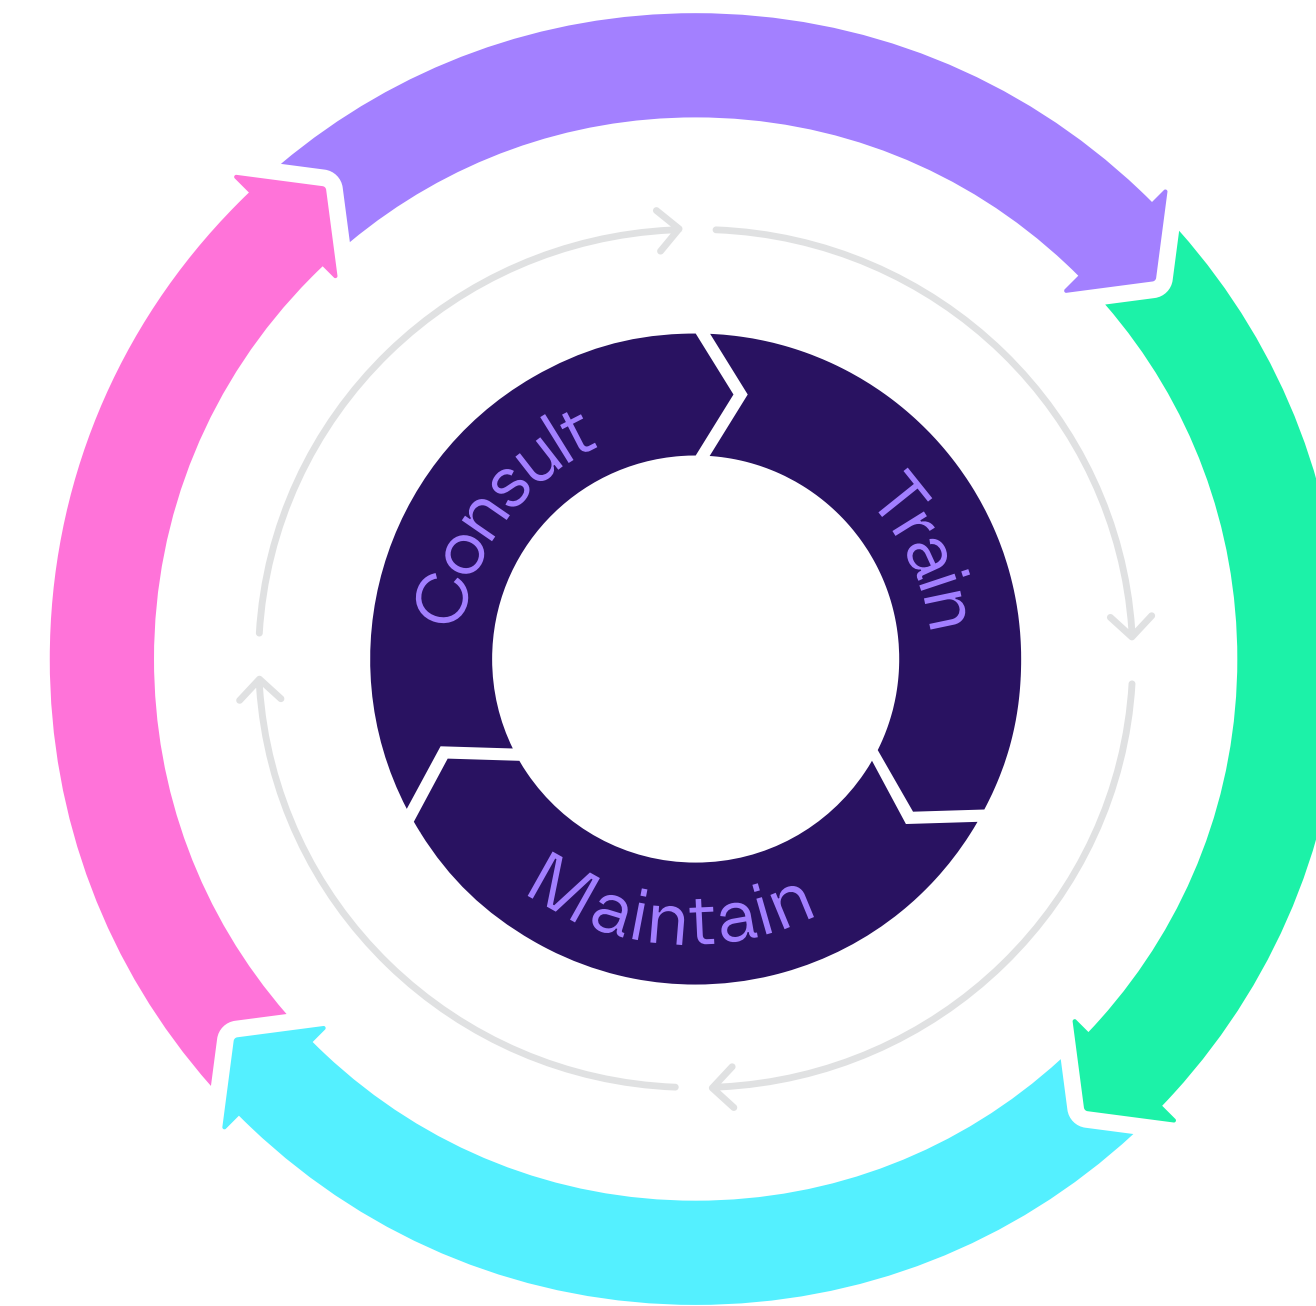

The best health, safety and fire results happen when learning and leadership go hand in hand.

Consultancy helps you understand where the real risks are. Training gives your people the skills and confidence to manage those risks every day. Ongoing support keeps standards live, visible, and easier to maintain over time.

This is how organisations move from reactive compliance to stronger culture, better performance, and more resilient systems.

It's the difference between delivering a service and building something that lasts.

That's why we use a simple loop:

Consult

Identify the gaps, priorities, and legal duties that matter most.

Train

Turn that insight into practical skills, habits, and confidence.

Maintain

Review, refresh, and reinforce so compliance stays current and measurable.

One safety partner. Every level of support.

Our services work best when they work together, but each one can stand alone depending on what you need most right now.

Health & Safety Consultancy

Practical advice and hands-on support to help you strengthen systems, manage risk, and build a safer culture. Audits, risk assessments, policy and procedure development, ISO 45001 support, action planning, and leadership coaching.

Competent Person Support

Named, qualified support when you need expert guidance, interim cover, or help building internal capability. Compliance reviews, mentoring for in-house leads, meeting support, legal updates, and practical day-to-day advice.

Fire Safety

Expert fire support that helps you protect people, property, and peace of mind. Fire risk assessments, fire strategies, evacuation planning, fire door inspections and compartmentation surveys, and responsible person training.

Legionella Risk Management

Clear, compliant support to help you stay in control of water safety across your sites. Risk assessments, written schemes, sampling, site logbooks, and ongoing support for multi-site portfolios.

Training & Learning

Accredited and practical training designed around how people actually work. NEBOSH, IOSH, workplace training, eLearning, virtual, classroom, and blended programmes tailored to roles, risks, and teams.

The joined-up advantage

When these services connect, the value grows. Consultancy identifies the risks. Training builds the capability to manage them. Ongoing support helps keep standards live, visible, and easier to maintain.

Proof that gives clients confidence

We know trust matters. When clients choose Ligtas, they need confidence that the advice, training, and support they receive will stand up to scrutiny and work in practice.

Accreditations and standards

These standards matter because they give clients confidence that Ligtas works to independently assessed benchmarks for quality, safety, training, and information management.

Real-world results

Managing Risk Across 1,000 Sites

Ligtas has partnered with a national retailer for more than 20 years, providing health and safety, fire and training services across 1,000 sites. Standardised processes, transparent reporting and measurable compliance improvements are part of our fully managed service.

20 years of safer properties

A national managing agent responsible for thousands of properties across the UK has partnered with Ligtas for two decades. Health and safety, fire and training services are provided across the residential and commercial properties.

Embedding Safety Culture in a Growing Manufacturer

A growing manufacturer combined consultancy, Competent Person support, and NEBOSH and IOSH training with Ligtas, leading to stronger engagement, better near-miss reporting, and fewer incidents.

Let's make safety simpler

If you want to strengthen compliance, improve culture, or get clearer support across health, safety, fire, water, and training, we're here to help.

Some clients come to us for one service. Many stay because they realise the value of having one partner who understands their business, joins the dots, and helps them build something stronger over time.

Whether you need:

- Health, Safety and Fire Consultancy
- A named Competent Person
- Legionella support
- Accredited training for your teams
- Or a more joined-up plan across all of the above

We'll help you find the right starting point.

Safety is better when it's shared.

Let's start a conversation that makes your organisation safer, stronger, and ready for the future.
